

The Right Idea in FLORENCE Oil Stoves

Oil Cook Stoves "Look for the Lever"
Florence Oil Stoves are safe, reliable, simple, convenient, economical. Heat is easily regulated by a little lever. No wicks to trim; no valves to leak. A glass "bull's eye" always shows you amount of oil in tank.
No other stoves approach Florence Oil Stoves in reliability and economy—in the intensity of heat, in work done by a given quantity of oil—in their low cost of 1/2 cent an hour per burner.
All Florence Stoves and Ovens are guaranteed.

Luxury of Power

The real luxury of motoring is the luxury of Power. Sooner or later all those who drive motor cars learn that power is the thing that makes or mars motor car pleasure.

Other things may have a stronger appeal to the eye, especially to the eyes of those who do not know; but eventually they all discover that motoring pleasure and satisfaction can be derived only from the car with the powerful motor.

The Buick Valve-in-Head Motor is guaranteed to have more power, more speed, and to be more economical in fuel consumption than any other type of motor of equal size ever built.

THINKLETS

By HARRY STOCK

"If you can make a river run uphill, you can make a singing student stay in out of the night air," says Henry Edward Malloy.

"Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's," says an old quotation; "and give the editor Hail Columbia," is the recent addition to the old saw.

When a woman asks a favor of a man, you can figure the favor isn't for herself, but for another man.

One of the Normal School faculty, upon observing one of the local cut-ups, said "Gee, wouldn't he make a naughty girl?"

To which we acquiesce, he would, indeed.

We overheard a married woman admit that she had two bosses, her husband and her mother. And we are willing to wager that no woman ever, under any circumstances, admitted submission to that insignificant creature, man.

It also occurs to us that a woman will not stand for this "holier than thou" stuff.

The young man who cannot endure the humiliation his little brother heaps upon him, is probably unaware that all boys like candy, gum, etc.

The counties chosen by Capper in his flying campaign trip are significant of the haste. Gov. Capper will visit Lincoln, Russell, Ellis and Rush counties.

Last week an event took place that needed the boosting of every citizen in the community. All the big men of the town stood behind the affair and through their energy made possible the success it attained. Others, narrow minded, doubting individuals, strove after their cynical fashion, to "knock" the very thing that would ultimately bring about a better place in which they might live. Such individuals are beneath the contempt and notice of the average citizen, and we are only utilizing this space for them, that they might take heed and fall in line.

The Hessian Fly Situation in Ellis County.

During the last three years the Hessian fly has gradually invaded Ellis county making its power of destruction felt by rich and poor alike. The eastern part of the county has been noticeably damaged by its ravages in the wheat fields.

The Hessian fly has a peculiar life history that enables it to pass safely from fall to spring and from harvest to seeding. When this life history is thoroughly understood, it is possible to meet the invader half way and give blow for blow.

As is usually the case with all pests that attack the crops of the farm, it is found that the scheme of life of the Hessian fly fits in best with poorest system of farming. Fields of wheat that were "stubbled-in" without any seed-preparation were most open to its ravages and many of them had to be plowed up and put to other crops or the ground fallowed for this fall's planting.

The Hessian fly thrives on fields that are permitted to grow volunteer wheat even though these be early plowed. Early seeded wheat is also open to its attacks even though there be no volunteer in the field as it may spread rapidly from one field to another.

The Hessian fly late in October changed from the active working stage (a small worm or maggot working on the stalk near the crown) to a resting or dormant stage known as the "flaxseed" and in this form passes over the winter safely until the first warm days of the spring when the adult or winged fly emerges from the flaxseed and spreads out over the wheat fields laying its eggs on the tender leaves. In a few days the egg hatches the small worm that immediately begins to feed on the plants. As harvest approaches this worm goes into the resting or "flaxseed stage" to pass over the time of heat and absence of food. The fly emerges during the last days of August, and through September, to again pass through its life cycle and do its damage to the early seeded wheat and carry over again to the seeding spring.

When the wheat is harvested in June and July, nearly all of the flaxseed are to be found at or below the surface of the ground resting in the stubble. It has been found that if this stubble is turned under to a depth of three or four inches and sealed in by harvesting, very few adult flies will ever emerge.

If such a plan is impossible keeping down the volunteer during the last of August and in September will prevent the flies that do get out from having green food on which to lay eggs. This will result in a reduction of numbers, with these plans must be combined later seeding.

When an effort has been made to combat the Hessian fly by early and deep plowing and by keeping down the volunteer it is found that a condition is secured that will permit of later seeding. (See article on rate and date of seeding.) A combination of good preparation, a later date, and a thicker rate, of seeding will have done all that one man can hope to secure a safe and satisfactory yield of wheat on his own farm. Then if his neighbors will go and do likewise all will find themselves in a better and safer position. When such a plan is generally followed it is probable that the average yield of wheat in Ellis County will be several points above its present level—13 bushels to the acre. Don't "stubble in" the wheat if it can be avoided.

Hotel Changes Hands.

The Gideon Inn changes hands the first of the week, J. J. Borders having leased it to J. C. Byers and Mrs. S. Christofferson, of Hays, who will also conduct an up-to-date cafe, in the north building of the Kay block. Both Mr. Byers and Mrs. Christofferson are experienced hotel and cafe people, having conducted one of the best eating houses in Hays before coming here. They have brought their equipment for the cafe with them, and it is up to the minute in every respect from the mechanical dish washer to the enormous refrigerator, with a capacity of a whole beef. Mr. Byers informed the Monitor man that they will have a well appointed dining room in connection with the cafe for the accommodation of lady patrons. The chef, who will have charge of the culinary department of the cafe, accompanied them from Hays. We predict success for them in their business venture here, and in behalf of the people of Morland, we extend the hand of fellowship and bid them welcome to our business circle. —A clipping from the Morland Monitor.

There are a few rooms for light housekeeping left—see Mulroy Bros., at the Windsor hotel.

Mrs. Gartland was taken quite ill Sunday, she was removed to St. Anthony's hospital Monday afternoon.

Warren Baker returned Wednesday night from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, where he purchased an up-to-date set of house-moving trucks.

Mrs. S. P. Denning has taken light housekeeping rooms, in the building owned by Mulroy Brothers, east of the Windsor on Crawford Street.

Grand Master Workman Dr. Graybill, was in Hays, last week, checking up the Workman Lodge. Mr. Graybill was well pleased with the reception accorded him by the Hays lodge, 357. He was also an interested visitor at the Golden Belt Fair. Mr. Graybill is a brother of Sam Graybill, postmaster at Hutchinson.

Sunday morning about 4:30 a. m., the people of Hays were startled out of their sleep by the piercing blasts of the mill whistle. It was discovered the U. P. pumping station was on fire and before assistance could be mustered it was burned to the ground. There was a good stiff gale of wind blowing and if there had been any buildings near they too would undoubtedly have been consumed. It is not known how the building caught fire, there are so many fires like it. We are left to guess whether a burning ember from the train or a lighted cigar did the work. There were some company workmen repairing the pump that night and were in the well when the fire whistle blew.
